The journey is excitingly long, never ending. Somewhere in the process you will touch your consciousness that tells you the good & the bad, the human & the spirituality, living & life. Somewhere down the line you would also meet your brain-the seat of your thinking that would probably say to you "thank you, for meeting me, at last". If that seat of power has already been introduced, it would say, "come take the reign & ride me to a far off destinations & the world of possibilities." In simple terms intelligence is dying to meet you, literally. If this does not happen, for some reason that you may try to justify, over a period of time your brain cells would steadily wear out then there is a possibility of being partial brain dead!

Intelligence has never been anybody's lifestyle because lifestyle is related to what we do. Intelligence demands a thinking style. It is a matter of a scientific impossibility that one does a simplest thing without thinking. Because, ultimately it is the brain, that gives instructions to our arms & feet. But that thinking is mostly an impulsive & compulsive thinking. The organized thinking has been a rare phenomenon for most of us. human intelligence could be & should be treated as a most outstanding of the choices before all of us if we care for the human evolution.

If you are reading through this text you are already a part of this revolutionizing entourage. I need you now more. You have made me habituated to talking to you having had your faithful listening company for last few seconds equaling millions of micro-moments of thought making. Yes, now you are my thoughtful friends. Putting a faith in this friendship valuably reinforced, I would like to share the next thing. Let us share our thinking energies, our creative pursuits, our aspirations & bundle them under a single scheme called "Intelligence for Humanity".

Physics makes us believe that physical realities are most important, most believable, and most trustable. But 'importance' is a value & its perception, belief is a value & trust too is a value. It is held & born in the mind & the thoughts. Welcome to the world of metaphysics. So far physics troubled you; now another challenge; the metaphysics. We think we are made to do things. But all the doing requires a lot of thinking too. Hence the more you want to do the more you need to think. The more you can afford to do the more you will have to stretch your thinking. The more you stretch your thinking; you probably reach a point sooner than later, the point of the done. It is a magic... try doing... doing... doing... You will have to go back & summon the thinking. Then try thinking ... thinking... thinking. You have much less to do to reach the done.

If you are still with me, then I can make an offer to you to actually join me in consulting the humanity with respect to the possible evolution. You will be relieved of your task of progeny to create a 'Biological Equal' because you can tell yourself that you have now got to create 'Intellectual Superior'. Here is how we begin.
